Sun Pacific Holding Corp Announces Update on Rhode Island Medical Waste to Energy Project

MANALAPAN, N.J., June 7, 2018 – Sun Pacific Holding Corp. (OTCOB: SNPW) announces that it has achieved several new milestones in its progress towards the development of the Company's Rhode Island medical waste to energy project.

As previously announced in February of 2018, the Company launched a Medical Waste to Energy project that would be located in Johnston, Rhode Island. A facility that could process up to 70 tons of medical waste per day. A facility that could generate megawatts of electricity that could be sold back into the electrical grid. A closed loop next generation pyrolysis facility that can accept medical waste from the New England region, while producing a profitable byproduct from the sale of both energy and an ash like byproduct. Sun Pacific's opportunity in Rhode Island is the Company's first response in targeting a global medical waste market place that is expected to reach $33.4 billion by 2025. Sun Pacific's goal is to target and build out other strategic Waste to Energy opportunities in North America in support of its high efficiency gasification technologies.

The Company since February 2018 has worked diligently to advance its efforts on this project and we are pleased to announce several new milestones towards that effort, that include:

1. A wholly owned subsidiary was formed and established called MEDRECYCLER, that is planned to hold a number of state specific subsidiaries that will operate facilities in various locations across the Country.
2. A subsidiary that will operate under MEDRECYCLER that was formed and established called MEDRECYCLER RI, that will house and operate the specific Johnston Rhode Island facility.
3. A Logo and Trademark was formed and established around the MEDRECYCLER brand that is being further developed that will include websites, marketing materials, and other soon to be launched efforts that the MEDRECYCLER organization will operate under:

4. Bank debt financing has been sourced and is currently under review, along with the option of working with the State of Rhode Island to allow the Company to use bond funding alternatives in the conversion of the debt to a longer term and possibly lower interest rate option.

5. Three established medical waste haulers have entered into letters of intent with the Company to provide the facility for an initial minimum period of three years, which would guarantee the sourcing of medical waste for the facility to operate profitably and efficiently.
6. Terms, planning, and other arrangements have been agreed to with the equipment manufacturer, along with a time table, which pending completion of the debt financing in the near term, would allow for an early 2019 revenue generating start date.
7. Operations management personnel with exceptional industry experience have been identified including a Plant manager with over 20+ years management experience, allowing the Company achieve its operating milestones quickly and efficiently.

“We have been working diligently with a number of stakeholders including industry participants, state and local officials, regulatory organizations, various experts and financial resources, and we have been pleased by everyone’s assistance and desire to launch this project timely,” stated Nicholas Campanella, CEO of Sun Pacific Holding Corp. “This project should provide a strong base that we can build from as we look forward at expanding this facility to several around the Country. A facility that will bring both critical mass in revenues and profitability in the near term to our Company. We see this as the beginning of a core part of providing green energy solutions, coupled with our other endeavours, that will created a profitable future for all of our Stakeholders.”

The Company looks forward to keeping its stakeholders aware of its progress as it moves forward with the launch of this facility in Rhode Island. We will be updating our progress as we complete our next milestones in this very exciting project.
